

NEWS RELEASE

For Immediate Release:
November 28, 2017

Contact information: Crystal Hicks
(936) 559-2970

Hour of Code at the Public Library

(Nacogdoches, TX) – The Nacogdoches Public Library invites the community to join the nationwide event Hour of Code during the week of December 4th through 8th at 4:30 p.m. daily. "The Hour of Code is designed to demystify code and show that computer science is not rocket science—anybody can learn the basics," said Hadi Partovi, founder and CEO of Code.org. "Over 100 million students worldwide have tried an Hour of Code. The demand for relevant 21st century computer science education crosses all borders and knows no boundaries."

Please call 936-559-2970 or visit www.ci.nacogdoches.tx.us/library for more information on this free drop-in program. Follow us on Facebook at Nacogdoches Public Library, and on Twitter and Instagram at NacPublicLibrary.

About Code.org

Code.org is a 501c3 public non-profit dedicated to expanding participation in computer science and increasing participation by women and underrepresented students of color. Its vision is that every student in every school should have the opportunity to learn computer programming. After launching in 2013, Code.org organized the Hour of Code campaign – which has introduced over 100 million students to computer science to date – and partnered with 70 public school districts nationwide to expand computer science programs. Code.org is supported by philanthropic donations from corporations, foundations and generous individuals, including Microsoft, Infosys Foundation, USA, The Ballmer Family Giving, Omidyar Network and others. For more information, please visit: code.org.