Time Completed: 12:55:46

Deputies were contacted by a complainant who requested a civil standby at a residence in the 6000 blk opf FM 1275. Upon arrival, the complainant informed deputies that she was in possession of a court order which, according to her, granted her the right to take possession of the residence and its contents. Deputies reviewed the documentation provided by the complainant and determined that it was a temporary court order and injunction issued by a judge from the 486TH Judicial District Court in Collin County, Texas NO. 4684-55871-2023 Regina Lois Hancock vs. Jonathan Troy Hancock. Upon closer examination, deputies noted that the order did not include a directive for eviction, nor did it contain a writ of possession or any other enforceable mandate authorizing law enforcement to assist in taking possession of the property. Deputies explained to the complainant that the order, as presented, was a civil matter and lacked the necessary enforcement authority for deputies to intervene. The complainant was advised to consult her attorney and pursue the appropriate legal motion through the court system in order to obtain a valid writ or eviction order. Despite being provided with a clear explanation regarding the legal limitations of the deputies' involvement, the complainant became visibly upset and refused to accept the explanation or the circumstances surrounding the matter. As the situation remained civil in nature and no immediate threat or criminal activity was present, deputies concluded their involvement and cleared the scene without further incident.
