Deputies were dispatched in reference to a neighbor's dog committing the highly technical offense of "being a dog" on the complainant's property. The complainant advised the neighbor had an active Criminal Trespass Warning and believed the warning should also apply to the dog. Deputies explained that while the dog may be guilty of poor decision-making and a questionable understanding of property boundaries, it was not legally capable of receiving a Criminal Trespass Warning. Deputies explained the warning applied only to the individual named and not their four-legged companion. The neighbor was also provided the same explanation. After everyone was reminded that dogs do not carry legal documents, read property signs, or understand court orders, deputies cleared the scene and returned to service.
